

CLOSET cravings

Our style editor researched progressive/contemporary designers that understand how children's clothing needs to be durable, comfortable, beautiful and responsible yet with a fashionable edge. Awareness about conservation issues needs to start at an early age. Sustainable fibers such as bamboo, linen and hemp have been used in designing these clothes.

Style Editor-
Allison Gurley

UglyFishOrganics.com

UglyFish was born out of a desire to give our children the same opportunity to express their individuality that we have as adults. As parents, we insist that our children's clothing be durable enough to withstand the test of the playground and beautiful enough to inspire our envy. The child inside us insists that everything we make be comfortable, unrestrictive and fun to wear. As optimists and activists we are passionate about teaching children a sense of responsibility to the world and empowering them to create change through the choices they make.

UglyFish Spring/Summer 2008 Collection is made under fair trade practices and are available in sizes 2T, 3T, 4T, 4, 5, 6, 7. Prices from $44 to $80.

*All UglyFish Organics clothing is made near the company's headquarters in Baltimore, MD.

